Episode Eight / Winter Sun

This is the eighth episode of Neutral.

In this episode Glenn heads to the Gold Coast to check out some old classic cars as well as the interesting characters that own them.

In the second half of the show Damo shows us a few simple checks that we can all do on a regular basis.

This episode also features our first technical hiccup, but we don't think anyone could spot it.

Winter Sun

The Wintersun Car Show is for pre-1974 vehicles only, so FJ Holdens line up alongside XP

Falcons as side-burned drivers reminisce about Bill Hayley and the Comets.

The festival began as a local carnival in 1978 and by 1988 had evolved into an annual rock 'n' roll festival.

By 1995, the Wintersun dancing competition was offering trips to Graceland Elvis' home as the major prize and the first Wintersun music CD was released.

The festival continued to grow and record crowds enjoyed record entries in the car shows.

By 2003, the Roulettes were performing their aerobatic routines in the skies over the festival and in 2004 fans could tune into Wintersun Radio for the duration of the festival it has come a long way since 1978!

In 2009, 80,000 visitors attended the festival which pumped some $20 million into the local economy. Despite the event's success, there is continued speculation over shifting the event to a new location due to issues of council compliance and funding.
